

A Gift of Water

a gift of dignity and hope for a Canadian community
in need

A Gift of Water

a gift of dignity and hope
for a Canadian community
in need

A Gift of Water

a gift of dignity and hope
for a Canadian community
in need

A Gift of Water

a gift of dignity and hope
for a Canadian community
in need

The Mishamikoweesh Water Partnership

"We were placed in a sacred manner on this earth, each in our own sacred and traditional lands and territories to care for all of creation and to care for water.

"We recognize and respect water as sacred and sustains all life. Our traditional knowledge, laws and ways of life teach us to be responsible in caring for this sacred gift that connects all life.

"Our relationship with our lands, territories, and water is the fundamental physical, cultural, and spiritual basis for existence."

– The Indigenous Peoples' Water Declaration, Troubled Water by Anita Roddick

The gift you have received is part of a nation-wide movement to equip all Canadians with clean water, a basic human right. We continue to build relationship with Mishamikoweesh leadership as we look for their direction on projects securing clean, running water in Indigenous communities. Future projects could include: training, water filters, another water truck, or the drilling of wells.

Each drop in the bucket has a significant ripple effect!

You are part of a ripple effect seeking to build a path forward where all Canadians have access to safe, clean, living water.

The Mishamikoweesh Water Partnership

"We were placed in a sacred manner on this earth, each in our own sacred and traditional lands and territories to care for all of creation and to care for water.

"We recognize and respect water as sacred and sustains all life. Our traditional knowledge, laws and ways of life teach us to be responsible in caring for this sacred gift that connects all life.

"Our relationship with our lands, territories, and water is the fundamental physical, cultural, and spiritual basis for existence."

– The Indigenous Peoples' Water Declaration, Troubled Water by Anita Roddick

The gift you have received is part of a nation-wide movement to equip all Canadians with clean water, a basic human right. We continue to build relationship with Mishamikoweesh leadership as we look for their direction on projects securing clean, running water in Indigenous communities. Future projects could include: training, water filters, another water truck, or the drilling of wells.

Each drop in the bucket has a significant ripple effect!

You are part of a ripple effect seeking to build a path forward where all Canadians have access to safe, clean, living water.

The Mishamikoweesh Water Partnership

"We were placed in a sacred manner on this earth, each in our own sacred and traditional lands and territories to care for all of creation and to care for water.

"We recognize and respect water as sacred and sustains all life. Our traditional knowledge, laws and ways of life teach us to be responsible in caring for this sacred gift that connects all life.

"Our relationship with our lands, territories, and water is the fundamental physical, cultural, and spiritual basis for existence."

– The Indigenous Peoples' Water Declaration, Troubled Water by Anita Roddick

The gift you have received is part of a nation-wide movement to equip all Canadians with clean water, a basic human right. We continue to build relationship with Mishamikoweesh leadership as we look for their direction on projects securing clean, running water in Indigenous communities. Future projects could include: training, water filters, another water truck, or the drilling of wells.

Each drop in the bucket has a significant ripple effect!

You are part of a ripple effect seeking to build a path forward where all Canadians have access to safe, clean, living water.

The Mishamikoweesh Water Partnership

"We were placed in a sacred manner on this earth, each in our own sacred and traditional lands and territories to care for all of creation and to care for water.

"We recognize and respect water as sacred and sustains all life. Our traditional knowledge, laws and ways of life teach us to be responsible in caring for this sacred gift that connects all life.

"Our relationship with our lands, territories, and water is the fundamental physical, cultural, and spiritual basis for existence."

– The Indigenous Peoples' Water Declaration, Troubled Water by Anita Roddick

The gift you have received is part of a nation-wide movement to equip all Canadians with clean water, a basic human right. We continue to build relationship with Mishamikoweesh leadership as we look for their direction on projects securing clean, running water in Indigenous communities. Future projects could include: training, water filters, another water truck, or the drilling of wells.

Each drop in the bucket has a significant ripple effect!

You are part of a ripple effect seeking to build a path forward where all Canadians have access to safe, clean, living water.